THE TIMES KODAK.

Interesting News Items Gathered Around Salem.

In conversation with the Salem correspondent yesterday Supervisor W. P. Moomaw informed him that in Big Lick district the road fund, with the aid of private subscriptions, would be sufficient to build two bridges over Tinker creek, one at Mrs. D. S. Reed's on the Fin-castle and Rocky Mount turnpike, the other at Carr ford, near Vinton, and that work would very soon be commenced on them.

At the council meeting Thursday night the petition of the Roanoke Street Railway Company for extension privileges was laid on the table. The council will next consider whether the company shall not be compelled to extend its lines to Burwell street as agreed in the original franchise.

A German will be given at Roanoke Red Sulphur Springs on the night of Tuesday, the 15th, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Fleming, of Lynchburg.

Rev. M. A. D. Bruster, of New Orleans, will conduct services in the Episcopal Church this morning. Rev. C. A. Miller will occupy the Lutheran pulpit this morning and this evening.

Mrs. F. A. Lovelock, who has been critically ill for the past few days, is decidedly better.

Councilman J. Smith and his daughter, Miss May, are visiting friends in Tazewell county.

John P. Caldwell and wife, of New Castle, were at the Huff House yesterday. Mr. Caldwell says that Craig will send a full and enthusiastic delegation to the district convention to be held here on August 31.

An unsuccessful attempt was made yesterday to obtain bail for Otey Meade, in jail for stealing peaches in the Hollins neighborhood.

It is remarkable how widely read is THE ROANOKE TIMES and how often notices in its columns have been the means of restoring lost property to the owners. Only on Friday in the Salem column was told the story of a negro boy stealing a horse and trying to sell it in Elliston, where horse and boy were both taken in charge by Mr. Northcross. The colt had been stolen from Capt. E. T. Kindred in Roanoke, who had spent two days vainly looking for it. Friday when Mr. John Tinsley read the account in the Salem column he showed it to Capt. Kindred, who immediately went to Elliston and recovered his lost colt. Another instance, in Friday's paper in the Salem column was a four-line "ad," stating that a gold badge had been found. Before noon of the same day a gentleman who read the notice recognized the chain as belonging to a lady in town and so notified the finder. If the public have noticed there are only two of many similar instances where advertising in THE ROANOKE TIMES has brought satisfactory results. Depend upon it there is not a paper in the Southwest in which an "ad" will be read by so many people as in THE TIMES.

M. F. Huff, auctioneer, yesterday sold 205 acres, part of the Victoria tract, to B. F. Ammen for $600. The sale of the Development Company's property was again postponed until next Saturday on account of the absence of G. W. Palmer.

Much of the Bott mines machinery, which has been sold to the parties working the iron mines near Cave Spring, is being shipped to them.

Opening Up a Rich Mica Mine.

Thos. S. Kennerly has returned home from Franklin county, where he has been engaged in opening up a rich mica mine on Chestnut mountain, near Snow creek, in that county. Mr. Kennerly thinks it is one of the most valuable deposits in the country and says they are now taking out sheets of mica 10x10 inches and as yet have only been prospecting on the surface.

Dr. Filippo in Baltimore.

A SUPERNATURAL STORY.

The Contents of a Paper Found on the Person of an Insane Suicide.

Here is a story of the supernatural. It happened more than 100 years ago, so that you may hope that it is not true. Yet in those days the invention of news was not yet known, and the paper which contains this story was a sober and honest journal. One of the patients in a madhouse—a parish madhouse, I think that of Luncheon—escaped. That was no new thing. They all wanted to escape. As the woman, although very mad indeed, was quite harmless, they went about their search in a leisurely fashion. At last they found her drowned in a shallow ditch and carried her back to the madhouse.

On preparing the unhappy woman for the grave they found in her corset—then called her stays—something that rustled. They cut the thing open and discovered a small parcel rolled up tight in some waterproof stuff—whatever was then invented. The parcel was a document written on parchment. It was written very small and misspelled, but this was how it ran:

"The man came along after dark. He stopped at our door and said he was a stranger, and would my aunt take him in for the night? He seemed a sailor and said he was respectable and showed money. 'Elizabeth,' said aunt, 'he can have your room, and you shall sleep with me.' There were two bedrooms in the cottage, up a ladder, both garrets. During the evening he sent me out for drink, and he had a lot and was drunk, but he got up the ladder safe and so to bed. In the night I heard aunt get out of bed. There was a moon shining in the skylight window.

"She took something and went into the man's room. Then I was frightened and sat up in bed, and I heard a sound as of a blow and nothing more. Presently aunt came back, and in the moonlight she saw me sitting up in bed. 'Get up,' she said; 'go down stairs and get, if you can, a light.' So I did and brought the rushlight up the ladder. Aunt had the Bible in her hand. 'Swear,' she said, 'that you will never tell any one what has been done.' So I swore, trembling, and wished I might go suddenly mad if I told. 'Then,' says she, 'I've killed the lodger. His pockets were full of guineas, and I'm a made woman. But you must help me.'

"So she made me help to drag the body down into the room below and out in the garden, where we dug a hole under the cabbages and hid it as deep as we could. Then we covered all up and went back to the house and waited till daybreak. As soon as it was light we washed up the place, and nobody ever found out. One night, when I was a woman grown, the dead man came to my bedside and said, 'Tell the story,' and I said, 'I cannot, because I swore.' He said: 'If you tell, you have sworn to go mad. If you do not tell, I will haunt you till you do go mad.' 'So, as I am bound to go mad either way, I have written the story down and sewn it up. When I am dead, somebody will find it and will dig up the poor man and bury him in a churchyard. The house is situated' * * *

Thus the narrative. And they dug up the garden in the place indicated and found the dead body in what had been sailor's clothes.—Walter Besant in London Queen.

Plays For Young Girls.

Many wise mothers think that the theater should be reserved for adult life. They regard it as a stimulant and to be unnecessary for the growing mind. It may be compared to those drugs which relieve headache by affecting the heart.

Still the mother who would make of her girl "a woman holy and wise" will not exclude the theater. But outside of some special representations of Shakespeare she will select only simple plays, such as "Rip Van Winkle," "Sweet Lavender," wholesome comedy where the deep passions of life are not exhibited, where the sinful follies of youth are not presented for sympathy and for commiseration.

There is one other class of plays which she may some time allow for the same reason that she cheerfully provides romance in books, and that is the real, old fashioned melodrama in which the hero is triumphant, the villain is brought to justice and all comes out right in the end. Such a treat is like the "follies" at surprise parties and straw rides, which were enjoyable because of their rarity.—New York Times.

Mourning Paper.

Mourning paper is a satire in itself. It wears the deepest possible black margin for the first six months, say. Then it grows a little narrower. Is that a sign that you are not mourning so much as you were during the first half year? Next year it is narrower still. The grief is greatly mitigated. The third year it is a mere streak. Your sorrow does not amount to much now! The next year the black border has entirely disappeared. Does that mean that you have forgotten your bereavement? That would be the logical interpretation, and yet in the case of how many whose stationery has gone through this diminishing perspective to the vanishing point the sorrow has been even more bitter after years perhaps than it was at first.—Boston Transcript.

Starboard and Larboard.

The Italians derived "starboard" from questa borda, "this side," and "larboard" from quella borda, which means "that side." Abbreviated these two phrases appear as sta borda and la borda. Their close resemblance caused so many mistakes that the admiralty ordered the "larboard" to be discontinued and "port" substituted. "Port" for "larboard" is said to be first used in Arthur Pitt's "Voyages" in 1580.—Philadelphia Press.

Twitting on Facts.

"Van Wither made an unfortunate remark at Sumner's wedding yesterday." "What did he say?" "Congratulated him on the treasure he had won, and every one but Van knows Sumner married her for her money."—Truth.
